CSSI, Inc. Welcomes Denise Watters as New Human Resources Director

Washington, DC – CSSI, Inc., a leading engineering, information technology, and applied research company, announces that Denise Watters, has joined its executive team as director of Human Resources and Administration.

In this role, Watters will be responsible for strategic human resources initiatives and business operations. Her responsibilities include recruitment, retention, performance management, compensation, incentive plans and corporate communications. Watters will also manage benefits, training and development and employee morale and welfare.

With more than 20 years of human resources and administration experience, Watters brings a wealth of knowledge to CSSI. Prior to joining CSSI, she led human resources activities at several national and international companies, chartering initiatives that resulted in increased retention and satisfaction of both customers and employees.

She has a strong background in aligning human resources activities with corporate strategy, succession planning and standardizing and streamlining policies and procedures.

At CSSI, she looks forward to strengthening relationships with employees and customers, and to enhancing and developing employee programs. She also plans to boost human resources' role during the proposal process, a time when retaining and recruiting talent is crucial.

“Denise has the skills CSSI needs to help find the best talent for our customers and ensure that the great people we have here, stay here,” said Allen Tiedman, president of CSSI. “Denise is a consummate professional whose knowledge and experience will help take CSSI to the next level.”
