Dr. John Coleman Joins CSSI as Vice President, Advanced Solutions

Washington, DC – CSSI welcomes Dr. John Coleman as vice president of Advanced Solutions.

Coleman will lead CSSI's efforts to develop cutting-edge solutions for hard-to-solve, high-consequence problems in government and commercial markets.

"CSSI is poised for growth, and John will help us determine how we can use our technical expertise to help new customers solve their toughest business challenges," said Cynthia Castillo, CSSI president and CEO. "We're very happy to have him on board."

Coleman is well-suited for his new role, with more than 28 years of experience in diverse engineering and technology environments. His background includes a decade of service as an Air Force officer and experience with several prestigious institutions, including U.S. Air Force Armstrong Labs, Lawrence Berkeley Labs, and NASA Langley Research Center.

He also has a great deal of industry experience, with responsibility for overseeing profit and loss centers, and managing functional activities, including engineering organizations and large project portfolios.

Coleman joins CSSI from Lockheed Martin, where he spent more than 10 years in roles of increasing responsibility. Most recently at Lockheed Martin, Coleman was Senior Program Manager for Special Initiatives, where he led projects to develop new product and service offerings in emerging markets.

Coleman holds a PhD in engineering management and systems engineering, a Master's in Business Administration, and Project Management Professional certification.
